

POSITION #1

Loyola University Chicago's School of Social Work invites applications for a faculty position. This tenure-tenure/track appointment will begin July 1, 2009. Salary and benefits for this position are competitive, pending final approval of funding.

Minimum Qualifications: Appointment may be made at the Associate Professor or Full Professor level, depending on qualifications. Candidates will be expected to have completed the requirement for tenure at the level of the rank of the position. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. (Social Work is preferred). An MSW from an accredited school of social work is required.

Preferred Qualifications : Applicants should demonstrate interest and experience in teaching, research and scholarship. Consideration will be given to those applicants with demonstrated interest in the area of aging. Candidates should have strong clinical experience (two years post masters) as well as a demonstrated record of grants and scholarship. Teaching responsibilities in two content areas of the curriculum (practice, human behavior, research and policy). Teaching may include courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Candidates should also have experience and/or willingness to experiment with on line teaching. Opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration will be encouraged. Affiliation with the Institute for Intergenerational Studies and Practice is expected.

The School of Social Work at Loyola University Chicago is an accredited school of social work, located on the Water Tower Campus in downtown Chicago. Founded in 1914 and accredited since 1921, Loyola University Chicago's School of Social Work educates students to become clinical social work leaders. Our curriculum addresses contemporary clinical, community and social issues encountered by social workers in practice. All faculty affiliate with one of our three Institutes for Learning. Our graduate degrees are distinctive for their strong focus on both clinical and leadership skills. We are a learning community that supports and expands knowledge and skills through excellence in scholarship and caring for others. The School of Social Work offers comprehensive and in-depth programs The social work program offers a superior curriculum and a well-rounded core of arts and sciences, as well as valuable opportunities for top internships and study-abroad programs.

Special Instructions to Applicants: Applicants should submit a letter of intent, summarizing their background, qualifications, and career goals, a curriculum vitae, and the names and email addresses of four references. All materials should be submitted online, at www.career.luc.edu.

Review of applications will begin immediately. Questions may be directed to:

Marcia Spira, Ph.D.
Associate Professor and CoChair of the Search Committee
Loyola University Chicago
School of Social Work
111 E Pearson Street
Chicago, IL 60611
Telephone: 312-915-7580
E-Mail: mspira@luc.edu

Loyola University Chicago is an equal opportunity affirmative action
Documents that CAN be attached by the applicant (Optional Documents)
CV/Resume
Cover Letter

Documents that MUST be attached by the applicant (Required Documents)
CV/Resume

Campus : Water Tower
Department/School/College: School Of Social Work-02800A
University Faculty Administration: Tim O'Connell
Health Science Faculty Administration:
Responsible Hiring Manager/Hiring Coordinator

Spira, Ph.D., Marcia
Northcut, Terry

POSITION #2

Loyola University Chicago's School of Social Work invites applications for a faculty position. This tenure-tenure/track appointment will begin July 1, 2009. Salary and benefits for this position are competitive.

Minimum Qualifications

Appointment may be made at the Associate Professor or Full Professor level, depending on qualifications. Candidates will be expected to have completed the requirement for tenure at the level of the rank of the position. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. (Social Work preferred though not required)

Desired qualifications:

Applicants should demonstrate interest and experience in teaching, research and scholarship. Consideration will be given to those applicants with demonstrated interest in the leadership and development in the non profit arena. Candidates should have a demonstrated record of grants and scholarship. Teaching responsibilities will include two content areas (human behavior, research and policy)and may include the undergraduate and graduate levels. The candidate should also have experience and/or willingness to experiment with on line teaching. Opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration are encouraged. The candidate will be expected to affiliate with one of the three Institutes within the SSW – the Institute on Immigration and Global Studies and Practice in Social Work, the Institute for Innovative Practice or the Institute for Intergenerational Study and Practice.

Review of applications will begin immediately. Questions may be directed to:

Terry Northcut Ph.D.
Associate Professor and CoChair of the Search Committee
Loyola University Chicago
School of Social Work
111 E Pearson Street
Chicago, IL 60611
Telephone: 312-915-7034
E-Mail: tnorthc@luc.edu

Loyola University Chicago is an equal opportunity affirmative action employer and educator. Applications from minorities and women are especially invited.

Documents that CAN be attached by the applicant (Optional Documents)

CV/Resume

Cover Letter

Documents that MUST be attached by the applicant (Required Documents)

